

“The Intersection of Race and Poverty in Criminal Justice”

Stephen Bright has been described as a “luminary in the field of criminal justice.” He serves as President and Senior Counsel of the Southern Center for Human Rights and is a Lecturer in Law at Yale Law School. Bright is a widely-sought expert on criminal justice reform and has testified frequently before committees of both houses of Congress. He is serving as UT’s Advocate in Residence this Fall.

Monday,
September 27
12:00 Noon
UT College of Law
Room 132